Invista: Cordura Duck

Cordura is intensifying its marketing activities and presented itself recently at the Paris exhibition, Expoprotection, with a new item in its product line: Cordura Duck. The intimate blend of 75 percent cotton and 25 percent nylon 6.6 with a canvas-like look has the hand of a premium cotton fabric and the characteristics of the Cordura fabrics, known for their durability. These fabrics have been on the market for more than 30 years and optimise suitcases, uniforms, outdoor wear and shoes. In the work clothing sector, Cordura protects especially stressed areas such as knees, pockets, shoulders, trousers hems, elbows and seams. Other items for work clothing include Cordura Nyco, based on a 50/50 intimate blend of Invista nylon 6.6 and cotton. By contrast, Cordura denim is made up of the well-known intimate blend of cotton and nylon 6.6, while Cordura Classic fabrics use 560dtex yarns. In addition, special items such as Cordura Classic fabrics of 770dtex yarns for light yet durable reinforcements in trousers or other garments that are subject to heavy wear. Or for applications that demand freedom of movement such as in the construction industry – roofers or carpet layers, for example. Last but not least, Cordura Lite fabrics of 370dtex yarns represent a light yet hard-wearing solution for high-quality, functional work jackets.
